FOREWARD TO THE FIRST EDITION

The history of dictionaries specifically intended for the Greek New Testament opens with a Greek-Latin glossary of seventy-five unnumbered pages in the first volume of the Complutensian Polyglot of 1552, including the words of the New Testament, Ecclesiasticus, and the Wisdom of Solomon. The incompleteness, inaccuracy, and elementary character of this glossary reflect the low state of Greek studies at the time it was published, but it was the first in a long and useful succession of New Testament lexical works.

The first NT dictionary with scholarly pretensions was the Lexicon Graeco-Latinum in Novum Testamentum by Georg Pasor, published in 1619 at Herborn in Nassau. Ludovicus Lucius put out his Dictionarium Novi Testamenti at Basel in 1640 with its words arranged for the first time in strict alphabetical order instead of by word-roots.

Many faults of contemporary NT lexicons were pointed out by Johann Friedrich Fischer in his Prolusiones de Vitiis Lexicorum Novi Testamenti (Leipzig, 1791); among these defects were neglect of the smaller words whose frequent use makes them extremely difficult to analyze and classify, the inclusion of too few or too many meanings, lack of logical arrangement, and insufficient attention to the background of NT words in Hebrew, the LXX, and secular Greek.

Among the works that showed the effect of Fischers criticism was CA Wahls Greek-Latin lexicon of 1822 (Leipzig). This was translated into English by Edward Robinson, the eminent American Biblical scholar, in 1825; Robinson brought out his own Greek-English dictionary of the NT in 1836 (Boston).

Up to this time it was customary for dictionaries intended for serious scholarly use to give the meanings of the words in Latin, though Edward Leigh in his Critica Sacra (London, 1639) had made a partial and apologetic attempt to give them in English, and John Parkhurst had published a Greek-English lexicon in 1769.

CLW Grimm published in 1868 (Leipzig) a thorough revision of CG Wilkes Greek-Latin Clavis Novi Testamenti. Joseph Henry Thayer of Harvard University, after twenty-two years of arduous labor in translating and augmenting Grimms work, put out his Greek-English Lexicon of the N.T. (New York and Edinburgh) in 1886.

The first dictionary to appear after the epoch-making discoveries of papyri, etc., beginning about 1890, was Erwin Preuschens Greek-German lexicon of 1910. Much to the disappointment of many reviewers, it failed to make much use of the new material, though it did include for the first time the words of the Apostolic Fathers.

Upon Preuschens untimely death in 1920, the revision of his lexicon was entrusted to Walter Bauer of Gottingen. Now, more than thirty years later, we may say that Professor Bauer stands pre-eminent in the history of NT lexicography. When his revision appeared in 1928 (Giessen) as the second edition of Preuschen, it was hailed as the best thing in its field. A third edition, thoroughly revised and reset, came out in 1937 (Berlin), with Bauers name alone on the title page.

In preparing for the fourth edition, Bauer undertook a systematic search in Greek literature down to Byzantine times for parallels to the language of the NT. The magnitude of this task and the greatness of the achievement have been well characterized in a review by Hvon Campenhausen (ThLZ 75, 1950, 349) of its first three fascicles: We are here dealing with a work which, when considered as the performance of one man, strikes one as almost fabulous. Not only was there a gigantic amount of material to be mastered, involving the most minute acquaintance with the whole body of Christian literature, but this task required at the same time the gift of combining and relating facts, and of preserving an adequate scholarly alertness which is granted to but few people; one thinks of the difficulty of immediately recognizing parallels in the respective authors and making proper use of them. This art is all the more admirable because its achievements manifest themselves only in the apparently insignificant form of articles in a lexicon, which purposely are kept as brief and factual as possible; most of the readers will normally not become aware of what has been accomplished.

To this we may add that Bauers analysis and arrangement of the small words so frequently used is a great improvement over anything of its kind previously done. *

It is this fourth edition of Bauers Griechisch-Deutsches Worterbuch zu den Schriften des Neuen Testaments und der ubrigen urchristlichen Literatur (Berlin, 1949-42) that we are privileged to present here in English dress, with some adaptations and additions. It has not been our purpose to make a literal translation, which would indeed have been impossible. The difficulties of translation being what they are, those who wish to know exactly what Bauer says about any word will have to consult the German original. On the other hand, our departures from the general sense of Bauers work have been few and far between.

We give here a representative, though not exhaustive, list of words in the treatment of which have made more or less significant adaptations or additions:

ἀγαπάω 1aβ, ἀγενής, ἀγρός, αἰών 1b, ἀκίνητος, ἀρκίς, ἀναιρέω 2, ἀνατρέφω, ἀντίτυπος 1, ἀπειθέω 3, ἀπέχω 1, ἀπλότης, ἀπλώς, ἄρα, βελόνη, βόρβορος, διανύω, δίκαιος 3; 4, δικαιοῶ 3b, διῴλιζω, δοῦλος, εἰδέα, εἰς 6a, ἐκδίκησις, ἐκεῖσε, ἐκλεκτός, εὐδοκία, εὐθύς, θεομακαρίτης, θερισμός, ἱλαστήριον, ἴνα III 1, καλάμη, καλῶς, καταλαμβάνω 1a καταργέω 2, κατέχω 1aγ, κατώτερος, κεφαλή, 2b, κοιλία 3, κόσμος 5b, κράσπεδον 1, κρίσις 3, λέπρα, ληστής, λίμνη, μάκελλον, μεθίστημι, μόογενής, μυστηριον 2 (Eph 5: 32), νικάω 2a (Dg 5: 10), οἶνος, ὁμοθυμαδόν, ὀπθοτομῶ, οὖν 2c; 3; 4, ὄχλος 1, παιδαγωγός, πάντως 2; 3; 4, παραβολή 1, παρεκτός 1, παρεμβολή 1, παρέκω 2c, πνύγῃ 1, Πιλάτος, πιστεύω 2aδ, πλεονεκτέω 1b, πληροφορέω 1a, πνεῦμα 5b, πρεσβύτερος 2b, πρηνής, προέχω 3, πρόθεσις 1, προσευχή 2, προσπίπτω 1 (Lk 5:8), πρῶτος 1ca (Eph 6:2), πύθων, ῥύπτις 1, σήμερον (w. ref. to ἐπιούσιος), σκεῶς 2, σπερμολόγος, στοικεῖον 1; 3, συγγινώσκω, συγχρωτίζομαι, συναρμόζω 3, συνεργέω (Rom, 8: 28), συντριβή, τέλος 3, τηρέω 2b (I Cor 7: 37), υἱός 1cγ (Mt 5: 9), ὑποκρίνομαι, φαίλονης, φάραγξ, Φίλιππος 2, φύσις, χαίρω, χάρις 3 (2 Cor 1:15).

We have included a few words that are not in Bauer4; most of them are those found in the fragments of Papias (e.g.

ρίς); all the words of these fragments are dealt with in this lexicon. Other additions are words like εὐπερίσπαστος, εὐσχημονέω and ξαίνω, which appear in the apparatus of the latest editions of the Nestle text, and for which we gratefully acknowledge the aid of Dr. Erwin Nestle, its editor. One interesting conjecture, ἀπαρτί, has been included for the first time.

Various other minor changes and additions will be evident to anyone who compares this book with the German original. Slight adjustments have been made in the arrangement of entries, which, we hope, will smooth the way for the user of this lexicon. We have corrected typographical and other small errors in the original, varying from wrong punctuation or accent to a faulty NT reference. We can only hope that we have not made too many fresh mistakes of our own. We have also included more irregular verb-forms than Bauer has.

The notations M-M. and B. at the end of an entry mean that the word is treated in Moulton and Milligans invaluable Vocabulary of the Greek New Testament and CD Bucks Dictionary of Selected Synonyms in the Principal Indo-European Languages; the latter will partially make up for the paucity of etymological information deplored by Bauer in the foreword to his third edition of 1937; we may add that Bucks monumental work deserves to be better known. References are likewise given to all the words treated by EJ Goodspeed in his Problems of NT Translation, and to some from F Fields Notes on the Translation of the NT. The NT grammars of JH Moulton, Moulton-Howard, and Robertson are referred to when this is possible. All this is largely in addition to the biographical notices given in Bauer⁴.

References to the New (Oxford) English Dictionary will be found under these words: διαθήκη, διῴλιζω, δοῦλος, ἐξαγοράζω, θάλασσα, Ἰάκθρος, ἰλαστήριον, παιδαγωγός, πραῦς, πρεσβύτερος, πύθων, σπλάγχνα, τράπεζα, ὑάκινθος.

The references to scholarly periodical literature have been brought up to the latter part of 1954. We have made other additions to the bibliographical notices as our allowance of time and other resources (extremely generous but, of course, not unlimited) permitted. If the user finds them insufficient, he is referred to the excellent bibliographies found in Biblica (by P Nöber), in the Internationale Zeitschriftenschau für Bibelwissenschaft und Grenzgebiete, vol. I (Heft I 1951f; Heft II, also covering 1951f, publ. 1954) edited by F Stier of Tübingen, in the Theologische Literaturzeitung, in NT Literature: An Annotated Bibliography (1943-5 inclusive) publ. 1948 by WN Lyons and MM Parvis, in BM Metzgers Index of Articles on the NT and Early Church Published in Festschriften (1951), and in many other places. It is also taken for granted that much use will be made of the standard commentaries and other handbooks.

The history of our work should be briefly recounted. When in 1947 the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod observed its centennial, a part of the thank offering gathered was set aside as a fund for scholarly research. The Lutheran Academy of Scholarship, Dr. MH Scharlemann president, had a prominent part in the discussions that led to this decision. The committee, appointed by Dr. JW Behnken, the president of the church, to administer the fund, resolved to have Bauers Wörterbuch done into English with such adaptations and additions as would be required. Since the University of Chicago Press had been in negotiation with Dr. Bauer on this subject, the committee of the church turned to this publishing house and enlisted its co-operation and services. The translation rights were duly obtained. Professor FW Gingrich of Albright College, Reading, Pa., was engaged to give his full time to the undertaking, having been granted a leave of absence in September 1949. Professor WF Arndt of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, MO., an institution of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, was appointed to be the director of the venture. The manuscript was finished in January 1955. This dictionary in its English dress constitutes a gift of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod to the English-speaking world, presented in the hope that the work may assist in the interpretation and dissemination of the Divine Word which lives and abides forever.

Various officials of the University of Chicago Press have rendered valuable assistance in the complicated negotiations required to set this project in motion. Among them we may mention in particular Dr. Mitford M. Mathews, head of the Dictionary Department of the Press and editor of the Dictionary of Americanisms. His wise counsel has helped us in every stage of our work.

We have been aided from the beginning of our project by an advisory committee composed of the following scholars: HJ Cadbury, EC Colwell, CH Dodd, FV Filson, MH Franzmann, EJ Goodspeed, FC Grant, BM Metzger, PS Schubert, W Wente, AP Wikgren. CH Kraeling advised us on archaeological matters, and A Heidel (d. June 1955) checked the Semetic language materials in our manuscript.

We have also received valued assistance from the following: V Bartling, W Beck, H Greeven, WHP Hatch, WR Hutton, P Katz, PE Kretzmann, JR Mantey, R Marcus, E Nestle, MM Parvis, OA Piper, JM Rife, and JD Yoder. Neither these gentlemen nor those of the advisory committee are to be held responsible for the opinions expressed in this lexicon. The editors accept responsibility for all errors, and invite users of the lexicon to draw attention to any they may find.

Regarding the question whether to enter the contract verbs in their contracted or uncontracted form, we recognize the validity of DJ Georgacas arguments in Classical Philology 47, 52, 167-9, but have retained the uncontracted forms to avoid confusing the student, who almost invariably learns them in these forms. The references to Biblical literature and Josephus have been checked by Messrs. R Stallman and C Froehlich. In the spelling of proper names we have generally followed the usage of the Revised Standard Version. Finally we express warm thanks to the staff of Cambridge University Press, and especially its typesetters and proofreaders, for their splendid co-operation and assistance.

FOREWORD TO THE SECOND EDITION

When the English translation of Walter Bauers Wörterbuch was published on 29 January 1957, Professor Bauer was completing work on the fifth edition of his book, which came out in nine fascicles during 1957 and 1958. This contained so much new material that a revision of our work was made inevitable. Our second revised edition contains Bauers additions as well as a number of changes and additions of our own.

In the foreword to the first edition we invited those who found errors in our work to call them to our attention. As a result, we had replies from as far away as Africa and New Guinea, as well as a large number from our own country. Many, if not most, of these errors were corrected in subsequent reprintings, notably the sixth of 1963 and the tenth of 1967, and we wish to express our gratitude to those users of this book. We now extend the same invitation to the users of the second edition.

We also acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the many scholars who sent us valuable suggestions, whether solicited or unsolicited. Two young men did valiant service in checking and correcting the asterisks at the end of many entries; they are John Recks for the New Testament and Almon D. Baird, Jr., for the Apostolic Fathers. As a result of their painstaking work, the asterisks now present a much more accurate picture of the usage than they ever did before. Others who rendered sustained and valuable assistance are Theodore Eisold, Robert Stockman, William Reader, and Donald Wicke.

The enormous current proliferation of books and articles has made it impossible to continue the fullness of citation that some of Bauers entries exhibited. Furthermore, ready access to bibliographical data banks, such as the annual Internationale Zeitschriftenschau für Bibelwissenschaft und Grenzgebiete (Patmos-Verlag, Düsseldorf, 1951ff) or New Testament Abstracts, published three times a year by the Weston School of Theology, now at Cambridge, Massachusetts (1956ff), suggests that it would not be discreet even to make the attempt. Instead, we have been at pains to add discussions where previously there had been none, and the number of such and other supplemental references to scholarly literature runs well into four figures (apart from Bauers own additions), and extends into 1973.

More important, the classics, papyri, and inscriptions have yielded fresh formal and semantic parallels, in some cases necessitating rearrangement of patterns of definition. References to the literature of Qumran and to texts of portions of the New Testament published since our first edition are frequent. Indeed, the number of new words and other variants that have been incorporated reflects the contribution made especially by the Bodmer Papyri to the study of the New Testament. Among the new entries are: ἀπονεύω (Bauer), γοργός, ἐθελο - compounds (Bauer), εἶμι, θερεία, κοινῶς, λεθράω, Λίβανος, νεῖκος, νευης, ποδονιτήρ (Bauer), πρεσβευτής, πυρκαῖα, ὑπερασπίζω, ὑσσός.

It has also proved impossible to list all available translations of foreign-language publications. Fortunately, the section numbers in the standard grammar of F. Blass and A. Debrunner remain the same in the translation and revision by Robert W. Funk, A Greek Grammar of the New Testament and Other Early Christian Literature (Chicago, 1961); and the publishers of G. W. Bromileys translation of the Kittel-Friedrich Theologisches Wörterbuch the Theological Dictionary of the New Testament (Grand Rapids, Michigan, 1964ff), are to be congratulated for maintaining in the main the pagination of that monumental German work. The student is urged to consult these and all other standard reference works, whether we cite them specifically or not.

To Professor Lorman M. Petersen of Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Illinois, and the Committee for Scholarly Research (Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod) under his direction go our warmest thanks for their continuing interest in and support of a costly undertaking. At the same time we record with sorrow the death of our mentor, Professor Walter Bauer (b. 8 August 1877, d. 17 November 1960) and of our esteemed coworker, Professor William F. Arndt (b. 1 December 1880, d. 25 February 1957).

In all these cases only one brother and one sister are involved. Yet there are also passages in which ἀδελφοί means brothers and sisters, and in whatever sequence the writer chooses (Polyb. 10, 18, 15 ποιήσεσθαι πρόνοιαν ὡς ἰδίων ἀδελφῶν καὶ τέκνων; Epict. 1, 12, 20 ἄδ. beside γονεῖς, τέκνα, γείτονες; 1, 22, 10; 4, 1, 111; Artem. 3, 31; Ptolem., Apotel. 3, 6; Diog. L. 7, 108; 120; 10, 18. In PMich. 214, 12 [296 AD] οἱ ἀδελφοί σου seems to be even more general='your relatives'. So in Lk 21:16 there is no doubt that ἀδελφοί=brothers and sisters. There is more room for uncertainty in the case of the ἀδελφοί of Jesus in Mt 12:46f; Mk 3:31; J 2:12; 7:3, 5; Ac 1:14.

Of these, 2=3b is an OT requirement for sacrifice (Lev 2:13), in 1=3a the fire serves as a symbol of the suffering and sacrifice by which the disciple is tested. Cf. lit. on ἄλας 2 and πῦρ 2. ἀλλά (Hom.+ gener.; inscr., pap., LXX, Ep. Arist., Philo, Joseph., Test. 12 Patr.) adversative particle indicating a difference with or contrast to what precedes, in the case of individual clauses as well as whole sentences but, yet, rather, nevertheless, at least.

1. after a negative—a. introducing a contrast οὐκ ἦλθον καταλῦσαι, ἀλλὰ πληρῶσαι Mt 5:17. οὐ πᾶς ὁ λέγων. . . ἀλλ' ὁ ποιῶν 7:21. οὐκ ἀπέθανεν, ἀλλὰ καθεύδει Mk 5:39. οὐκ ἔστι θεὸς νεκρῶν ἀλλὰ ζώντων Mt 22:32; Mk 12:27; Lk 20:38.—W. ascensive force (BI-D. §448; Rob. 1187) οὐ μόνον. . . ἀλλὰ καὶ not only. . . , but also (Ep. Arist. oft.; Jos., Bell. 3, 102) οὐ μόνον δεθῆναι, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἀποθανεῖν Ac 21:13. οὐ μόνον σὲ ἀλλὰ καὶ πάντας τοὺς ἀκούοντας 26:29; cf. 27:10; Ro 1:32; 4:12, 16; 9:24; 13:5; 2 Cor 8:10, 21; 9:12; Eph 1:21; Phil 1:29; 1 Th 1:5; 2:8; Hb 12:26; 1 Pt 2:18. I tell you; rather, if you do not repent* 13:3, 5; cf. 16:30; J 7:12; Ac 16:37; Ro 3:27; after μὴ γένοιτο, which serves as a strong negation 3:31; 7:7, 13; cf. 1 Cor 7:21. The neg. answer is omitted as obvious: (no), instead of that 6:6 (as a declaration). Instead of ἁ.: ἀλλ' ἢ Lk 12:51; B 2:8. Also after a negative and ἄλλος, as in class. (Kühner-G. II 284f; IG IV 951, 76 [320 BC]; PPetr. II 46a, 5 [200 BC]; BI-D. §448, 8): except οὐ γὰρ ἄλλα γράφομεν ὑμῖν ἀλλ' ἢ ἃ ἀναγινώσκετε for we write you nothing (else) except what you (really) read 2 Cor 1:13. This construction οὐκ ἄλλος ἀλλ' ἢ is a combination of οὐκ ἄλλος. . . , ἀλλὰ (PTebt. 104, 19 [92 BC] μὴ ἐξέστω Φιλίσκωνι γυναῖκα ἄλλην ἐπαγαγέσθαι, ἀλλὰ Ἀπολλωνίαν) 1 Cl 51:5, and οὐκ ἄλλος ἢ. . . (Ps.-Clem., Hom. 16, 20).

b. within the same clause, used to contrast single words οὐ. . . δικαίους ἀλλ' ἁμαρτωλοὺς Mt 9:13; Lk 5:32. οὐκ ἐμὲ δέχεται ἀλλὰ τὸν ἀποστειλαντά με Mk 9:37. ἀλλ' οὐ τί ἐγὼ θέλω ἀλλὰ τί σύ 14:36, cf. In Mt 20:23, οὐκ ἔστιν ἐμὸν τοῦτο δοῦναι, ἀλλ' οἷς ἡτοιμάσται ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρός μου has been shortened from οὐκ ἐμὸν. . . ἀλλὰ τοῦ πατρός, ὃς δώσει οἷς ἡτοιμάσται ὑπ' αὐτοῦ.—But s. WBeck, CTM 21, '50, 606-10 for the mng. except for Mt 20:23=Mk 10:40, and Mk 4:22, also 9:8 v.l. (for εἰ μὴ); D 9:5. So also BI-D. §448, 8; Mlt.-Turner 330; MBlack, An Aramaic Approach3, '67, 113f.—After μὲν, to indicate that a limiting phrase is to follow πάντα μὲν καθαρὰ, ἀλλὰ κακὸν τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ Ro 14:20. σὺ μὲν γὰρ καλῶς εὐχαριστεῖς, ἀλλ' ὁ ἕτερος οὐκ οἰκοδομεῖται 1 Cor 14:17.—The use of ἀλλά in the Johannine lit. is noteworthy, in that the parts contrasted are not always of equal standing grammatically: οὐκ ἦν ἐκεῖνος τὸ φῶς ἀλλ' ἵνα μαρτυρήσῃ περὶ τοῦ φωτός=ἀλλὰ μαρτυρῶν π. τ. φ. 1:8; οὐκ ἦδεν αὐτόν ἀλλ' . . . ἦλθον although I did not know him, yet I came vs. 31. εἶπον, οὐκ εἰμὶ ἐγὼ ὁ Χριστός, ἀλλ' ὅτι I said, 'I am not the Christ; rather, I was sent before him' 3:28. οὔτε οὗτος ἡμαρτεν οὔτε οἱ γονεῖς αὐτοῦ, ἀλλ' ἵνα φανερωθῇ neither this man has sinned, nor his parents, but (he was born blind) that. . . might be revealed 9:3.

2. when whole clauses are compared, ἀλλά can indicate a transition to *some*th. different or contrasted: but, yet. δεῖ γὰρ γενέσθαι, ἀλλ' οὐπω ἔστιν τὸ τέλος Mt 24:6, cf. Lk 21:9. κεκοίμηται, ἀλλὰ πορεύομαι ἵνα ἐξυπνίσω αὐτόν J 11:11, cf. vs. 15; 16:20; Lk 22:36; J 4:23; 6:36, 64; 8:37; Ac 9:6; Ro 10:18f. ἁμαρτία οὐκ ἐλλογεῖται. . . ἀλλὰ. . . sin is not charged; nevertheless. . . 5:13f. Introducing an objection ἀλλὰ ἐρεῖ τις (Jos., Bell. 7, 363 ἀλλὰ φήσει τις) 1 Cor 15:35; Js 2:18. Taking back or limiting a preceding statement παρένεγκε τὸ ποτήριον τοῦτο ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, ἀλλ' οὐ τί ἐγὼ θέλω Mk 14:36. ἀλλ' οὐχ ὡς τὸ παράπτωμα, οὕτως καὶ τὸ χάρισμα Ro 5:15. ἀλλ' οὐκ ἐχρησάμεθα τῇ ἐξουσίᾳ ταύτῃ 1 Cor 9:12. ἀλλὰ ἕκαστος ἴδιον ἔχει χάρισμα 7:7. ἀλλὰ καὶ περὶ τούτου δὲ εἴρηται D 1:6.—In ἀλλ', οὐ πάντες οἱ ἐξεληθόντες. . . ; in Hb 3:16 ἀλλ', in the opinion of some, seems to owe its origin solely to a misunderstanding of the preceding τίνες as τινές by an early copyist (BI-D. §448, 4 w. app.), but here ἀλλά may convey strong asseveration surely (so NEB). See 3 below.

3. before independent clauses, to indicate that the preceding is to be regarded as a settled matter, thus forming a transition to *some*th. new ἀλλὰ ὁ ὄχλος οὗτος. . . ἐπάρατοί εἰσιν but this rabble. . . is accursed J 7:49. ἀλλ' ἐν τούτοις πᾶσιν ὑπερνικῶμεν (no, not at all!) but in all these we are more than conquerors Ro 8:37. ἀλλ' ὅτι ἃ θύουσιν, δαιμονίοις. . . θύουσιν (no!) but they (the heathen) offer what they sacrifice to demons 1 Cor 10:20. Cf. Gal 2:3 and Mt 11:7f ἀλλὰ τί ἐξήλθατε ἰδεῖν; (you could not have wanted to see that;) but what, did you go out to see? Also to be explained elliptically is the ascensive ἀλλὰ καὶ (and not only this,) but also Lk 12:7; 16:21; 24:22; Phil 1:18; negative ἀλλ' οὐδὲ Lk 23:15; Ac 19:2; 1 Cor 3:2; 4:3; strengthened ἀλλὰ γε καὶ indeed Lk 24:21; ἀλλὰ μὲν οὖν γε καὶ Phil 3:8; Hb 3:16 (s. 2 above) may well be rendered (as NEB) all those, surely, whom Moses had led out of Egypt (cf. Dio Chrys. 33, 36; 47, 3).

4. in the apodosis of conditional sentences yet, certainly, at least εἰ καὶ πάντες σκανδαλισθήσονται, ἀλλ' οὐκ ἐγὼ certainly I will not Mk 14:29; cf. 1 Cor 8:6; 2 Cor 4:16; 5:16; 11:6; strengthened ἀλλὰ καὶ: εἰ γὰρ σύμφυτοι γεγόναμεν. . . , ἀλλὰ καὶ τῆς ἀναστάσεως (sc. σύμφυτοι) ἐσόμεθα we shall certainly be united w. him in his resurrection Ro 6:5; limited by γε: εἰ ἄλλοις οὐκ εἰμι ἀπόστολος, ἀλλὰ γε ὑμῖν at least I am one to you 1 Cor 9:2 (cf. X., Cyr. 1, 3, 6; Bl-D. §439, 2; Dana and Mantey §211). ἐὰν γὰρ μυρίους παιδαγωγούς ἔχητε ἐν Χριστῷ, ἀλλ' οὐ πολλοὺς πατέρας certainly not many fathers 1 Cor 4:15.

5. rhetorically ascensive: (not only this,) but rather πόσῃν κατειργάσατο ὑμῖν σπουδὴν, ἀλλὰ ἀπολογία, ἀλλὰ ἄγανάκτησιν, ἀλλὰ φόβον, ἀλλὰ ἐπιπόθησιν, ἀλλὰ ζῆλον, ἀλλὰ ἐκδίκησιν even 2 Cor 7:11.

6. w. an imper. to strengthen the command: now, then (Arrian, Anab. 5, 26, 4 ἀλλὰ παραμείνατε=so hold on! Jos., Ant. 4, 145; Sib. Or. 3, 624; 632): ἀλλὰ ἐλθὼν ἐπίθεσ τὴν χειρά σου now come and lay your hand on her Mt 9:18. ἀλλ' εἴ τι δύνη, βοήθησον now help me, if you can (in any way) Mk 9:22. ἀλλὰ ὑπάγετε εἰπατε now go and tell 16:7. ἀλλὰ ἀναστὰς κατὰβηθι Ac 10:20. ἀλλὰ ἀνάστηθι 26:16.—In same sense w. subjunctive ἀλλ'. . . ἀπειλησώμεθα αὐτοῖς μηκέτι λαλεῖν now let us warn them not to speak any longer 4:17. ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐν παντὶ περισσεύετε. . . ἵνα καὶ ἐν ταύτῃ τῇ χάριτι περισσεύητε 2 Cor 8:7. Eph 5:24 is prob. to be understood in this way as an ellipsis, and can be expanded thus: then just as the church is subject to Christ, wives should also be subject to their husbands. Yet ἀλλάῖς also used to introduce an inference from what precedes: so, therefore, accordingly (e.g., Aristoph., Ach. 1189 ὁδὶ δὲ καὶ τὸς. Ἀλλ' ἀνοιγε τὴν θύραν=‘here he is in person. So open the door’, Birds 1718; Herodas 7, 89; Artem. 4, 27 p. 219, 22). M-M.

3. Paul thinks of sin almost in pers. terms (cf. Sir 27:10; PGM 4, 1448 w. other divinities of the underworld, also Ἀμαρτία χθόνια; Dibelius, Geisterwelt 119ff) as a ruling power. Sin came into the world Ro 5:12 (JFreundorfer, Erbsünde u. Erbtod b. Ap. Pls '27; ELohmeyer, ZNW 29, '30, 1-59; JSchnitzer, D. Erbsünde im Lichte d. Religionsgesch. '31; ROtto, Sünde u. Urschuld '32; FW Danker, Ro 5:12: Sin under Law, NTS 14, '67/'68, 424-39), reigns there vs. 21; 6:14; everything was subject to it Gal 3:22; men serve it Ro 6:6; are its slaves vss. 17, 20; are sold into its service 7:14 or set free from it 6:22; it has its law 7:23; 8:2; it revives (ἀνέζησεν) Ro 7:9 or is dead vs. 8; it pays its wages, viz., death 6:23, cf. 5:12 (see lit. s.v. ἐπὶ II 1bγ). As a pers. principle it dwells in man Ro 7:17, 20, viz., in the flesh (cf. σὰρξ 7) 8:3; cf. vs. 2; 7:25. The earthly body is hence a σῶμα τῆς ἅ. 6:6 (Col 2:11 t.r.).—As abstr. for concr. τὸν μὴ γνόντα ἅ. ὑπὲρ ἡμῶν ἁμαρτίαν ἐποίησεν (God) has made him to be sin (i.e., subject to death) who knew no sin, for our sakes 2 Cor 5:21. Or ἅ. may=sin-offering here, as Lev 4:24 (cf. APlummer, ICC ad loc.; NHSnaith, Vetus Testamentum 7, '57, 316f); or Jesus is viewed as representative and bearer of the world's sin (cf. Expos. Gk. NT ad loc.).

4. In Hb (as in OT) sin appears as the power that deceives men and leads them to destruction, whose influence and activity can be ended only by sacrifices: ἀπάτη τῆς ἅ. Hb 3:13; sin is atoned for (ἱλάσκεσθαι τὰς ἅ. 2:17) by sacrifices θυσία ὑπὲρ ἅ. 5:1 (cf. 1 Cl 41:2). προσφορά περὶ ἅ. sin-offering 10:18; also simply περὶ ἅ. Christ has made the perfect sacrifice for sin 9:23ff; συνειδήσις ἅ. consciousness of sin 10:2; ἀνάμνησις ἅ. a reminder of sins of the feast of atonement vs. 3).

Ἀμός, ὁ indecl. (on the corresp. Hebr. name s. ENestle, ZNW 4, '03, 188) Amos in genealogy of Jesus.

ἄν (after relatives ἐάν [q.v.] is oft. used for ἄν, but the mss. vary greatly, cf. Bl-D. §107; 377; Mlt. 165ff; Mayser 152f; Crönert 130f; Thackeray 67; Dssm., NB 30ff [BS 202ff]). A particle peculiar to Gk. (Hom.+; LXX), incapable of translation by a single English word; it denotes that the action of the verb is dependent on some circumstance or condition; the effect of ἄν upon the meaning of its clause depends on the mood and tense of the verb w. which it is used. The NT use of ἄν corresponds in the main to the classical, although the rich variety of its employment is limited, as is generally the case in later Greek.

1. ἄν w. aor. or imperf. indic.—a. denoting repeated action in past time, but only under certain given conditions, esp. after relatives (Bl-D. §367; Rob. index): aor. (Gen 30:42; Num 9:17; 1 Km 14:47; Ezk 10:11) ὅσοι ἄν ἤψαντο αὐτοῦ, ἐσώζοντο whoever touched him was cured Mk 6:56. Imperf. (Ezk 1:20; 1 Macc 13:20; Tob 7:11) ὅπου ἄν εἰσεπορεύετο εἰς κώμας wherever he went (as he was accustomed to do.—ADebrunner, D. hellenist. Nebensatziterativpräteritum mit ἄν: Glotta 11, '20, 1-28) into villages Mk 6:56. καθότι ἄν τις χρεῖαν εἶχεν as anyone was in need Ac 2:45; 4:35. Similarly ὥς ἄν ἡγεσθε, unless ἀνῆγεσθε is the correct reading, 1 Cor 12:2. Cf. also ὅταν 2c and d.

b. in the apodosis of a contrary to fact (unreal) condition (Bl-D. §360; but ἄν is not always used: §360, 1; Mlt. 199ff; PMelcher, De sermone Epicteteo '05, 75); it is found

α. w. imperf. (4 Macc 17:7; Bar 3:13) οὗτος εἰ ἦν προφήτης, ἐγίνωσκεν ἄν if he were a prophet, he would (now) know (but he does not) Lk 7:39. εἰ ἔχετε πίστιν. . . , ἐλέγετε ἄν if you had faith. . . , you would say 17:6. εἰ ἐπιστεύετε Μωϋσεῖ, ἐπιστεύετε ἄν ἐμοί J 5:46. εἰ ἐμὲ ᾔδειτε, καὶ τὸν πατέρα μου ἄν ᾔδειτε 8:19; cf. vs. 42; 9:41; 15:19. εἰ ἔτι ἀνθρώποις ἡρεσκον, Χριστοῦ δοῦλος οὐκ ἄν ἦμην Gal 1:10; cf. 3:21. εἰ ἑαυτοὺς διεκρίνομεν, οὐκ ἄν ἐκρινόμεθα 1 Cor 11:31. εἰ ἦν ἐπὶ γῆς, οὐδ' ἄν ἦν ἱερεὺς if he were on earth, he would not even be a priest Hb 8:4; cf. 4:8; 8:7; 11:15.

β. w. aor., placing the assumption in the past (Gen 30:27; Wsd 11:25; Jdth 11:2; 4 Macc 2:20; PGiess. 47, 17; PLond. II 278) εἰ ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις, πάλοι ἄν. . . μετενόησαν if the miracles had been performed, they would long ago have repented Mt 11:21. εἰ ἔγνωσαν, οὐκ ἄν ἐσταύρωσαν 1 Cor 2:8; cf. Ro 9:29 (Is 1:9). εἰ ἐγνώκειτε, οὐκ ἄν κατεδικάσατε if you had recognized, you would not have condemned Mt 12:7. εἰ ἠγαπᾶτέ με, ἐχάρητε ἄν if you loved me, you would have rejoiced J 14:28. The pluperf. for aor. indic. (PGiess. 79 II, 6 εἰ δυνατόν μοι ἦν, οὐκ ἄν ὠκνήκειν; BGU 1141, 27f) εἰ ἦσαν μεμενέκεισαν ἄν 1J 2:19; cf. J 11:21 v.l.—In κἀγὼ ἐλθὼν σὺν τόκῳ ἄν αὐτὸ ἐπραξα Lk 19:23, ἐλθὼν takes the place, as it were, of an unreal-temporal protasis (Bl-D. §360, 2); cf. καὶ ἐλθὼν ἐγὼ ἐκομισάμην ἄν τὸ ἐμόν Mt 25:27. Sim. ἐπεὶ οὐκ ἄν ἐπαύσαντο προσφερόμεναι; where ἐπεὶ takes over the role of the protasis, otherwise (i.e., if the sacrifices had really brought about a lasting atonement) would they not have ceased to offer sacrifices? Hb 10:2.

2. ἄν w. subjunc. after relatives, the rel. clause forming virtually the protasis of a conditional sentence (Bl-D. §380, 1) of the future more vivid or present general type.

a. w. fut. or impf. in apodosis, to show that the condition and its results are thought of as in the future, of single and repeated action (IG XIV 865 [VI BC] ὃς δ' ἄν με κλέψῃ, τυφλὸς ἔσται). ὃς δ' ἄν ποιῇ καὶ διδάξῃ, οὗτος μέγας κληθήσεται but whoever does and teaches=if he does and teaches it Mt 5:19. ὃς ἄν ἐσθίῃ. . . , ἔνοχος ἔσται 1 Cor 11:27. οὓς ἐάν (v.l. ἄν) δοκιμάσῃτε, τούτους πέμψω 16:3—Mt 10:11; 1 Cor 16:2.

b. w. pres. in apodosis, to show that the condition and its results involve repeated action, regardless of the time element: ἃ ἄν ἐκεῖνος ποιῇ, ταῦτα καὶ ὁ υἱὸς ὁμοίως ποιεῖ whatever he does, the Son does likewise J 5:19. ὅπου ἐάν (v.l. ἄν) αὐτὸν καταλάβῃ, ῥήσσει αὐτόν wherever it seizes him Mk 9:18. ὑμῖν ἐστὶν ἡ ἐπαγγελία. . . , ὅσους ἄν προσκαλέσῃται κύριος Ac 2:39. ὃς ἐάν (v.l. ἄν) βουληθῇ φίλος εἶναι τοῦ κόσμου, ἐχθρὸς τοῦ θεοῦ καθίσταται whoever wishes to be a friend of the world Js 4:4.—Where ὃς or ὅστις appears without ἄν (but cf. IG XII 1, 671 ὃς ἀνασπαράξῃ τ. τάφον; PRainer 24; 25; Act. Thom. 93; Is 7:2; 31:4), the reading that gives the fut. ind.

is poss. the right one: ὅστις τηρήσῃ κBC, τηρήσει AKLP Js 2:10. ὅσοι (without ἄν PPetr. I 13; PRain. 237; Inscr. v. Perg. 249, 26 ὅσοι ἐγλίπωσι τὴν πόλιν. Vett. Val. 125, 16): ὅσοι μετανοήσωσι καὶ καθαρίσωσι HS 8, 11, 3 is the result of a conjecture by vGebhardt; the ms. has καθαρίσουσι, and the Michigan Pap. ed. CBonner '34, p. 114, yields no sure result. Cf. Reinhold 108; Bl-D. §380, 4.

3. In temporal clauses ἄν is found w. the subjunct. when an event is to be described which can and will occur, but whose occurrence cannot yet be assumed w. certainty. So

a. ὅταν (=ὅτε ἄν; cf. ῥταν) w. pres. subjunct. to indicate regularly recurring action (Wsd 12:18): ὅταν ἄρτον ἐσθίωσιν whenever they eat bread Mt 15:2. ὅταν λαλῇ τὸ ψεῦδος whenever he tells a lie J 8:44. ὅταν λέγῃ τις whenever anyone says 1 Cor 3:4.—W. aor. subjunct. to express action in the future which is thought of as already completed (Sir pref. 1. 22; Tob 8:21) ὅταν ποιήσῃτε πάντα when you have done Lk 17:10. ὅταν ἔλθῃ ὁ κύριος when the owner has come Mt 21:40; ὅταν ἔλθῃ ἐν τῇ δόξῃ Mk 8:38; cf. J 4:25; 16:13; Ac 23:35. ὅταν πάλιν εὐσαγάγῃ τὸν πρωτότοκον Hb 1:6.

Only ἕως ἄν (PPetr. II 40a, 28 [III BC] ἕως ἄν ὑγιαίνοντας ὑμᾶς ἴδωμεν; Gen 24:14, 19; 49:10; Ex 23:30 al.) has certain attestation: μέντε ἕως ἄν ἐξέλθῃτε stay until you go away Mt 10:11. ἕως ἄν ἴδωσιν τὴν βασιλείαν τοῦ θεοῦ Lk 9:27.—Mt 2:13; 5:26. ἕως ἄν (κ13:31, οὗ 68 al.; in ABKL al. only ἕως λάβῃ Js 5:7.—ἄχρι οὗ (ἄν κC Dc37; 47 KLP, omitted by AB κCD*FG 17) ἔλθῃ 1 Cor 11:26. ἄχρις οὗ (ἄν κC Db 37; 47 KL) θῇ 15:25. ἄχρι οὗ ἄν (omitted by 38) ἦξῃ Rv 2:25. ἄχρις ἄν ἔλθῃ (cf. BGU 830, 13 [I AD] ἄχρις ἄν σοι ἔλθῃ) Gal 3:19 (so B.—P46 κAD t.r. have ἄχ. οὗ).—πρὶν ἄν: πρὶν ἄν (πρὶν ἢ AD κA 1, πρὶν ἢ ἄν BR(L)X 33, πρὶν alone 69, ἕως ἄν κ) ἴδῃ τὸν Χριστόν Lk 2:26 (Bl-D. §383, 3).

4. In purpose clauses the Attic (EHermann, Griech. ἀντίτυπος, ον (Anaximander+; IG XIV 1320; Esth 3:13d v.1.).

1. adj. corresponding to someth. that has gone before. The ἂ. is usu. regarded as secondary to the τύπος (cf. the oracular saying in Diod. S. 9, 36, 3 τύπος ἀντίτυπος and Ex 25:40), but since τύπος can mean both ‘original’ and ‘copy’ (see s.v. 2 and 5), ἂ. is also ambiguous (Polyb. 6, 31, 8 ἀντίτυπος τίθεμαί τινι I am placed opposite someth.). Thus in 1 Pt 3:21 ὁ (i.e., ὕδωρ) ὅμας ἂ. νῦν σφάζει βάπτισμα means baptism, which is a fulfilment (of the type), now saves you, i.e. the saving of Noah fr. the flood is a τύπος, or ‘foreshadowing’ (hardly the ‘original’ in the full Platonic sense 2 below), and baptism corresponds to it (so PLundberg, La Typologie Baptismale dans l’ancienne Église, ’42, 110ff; EGSelwyn, The First Epistle of St Peter, ’46, 298f; diffitly. BReicke, The Disobedient Spirits and Christian Baptism, ’46, 144f).

2. subst. τὸ ἂ. copy, antitype, representation (Wadd. 1855; Plotin. 2, 9, 6; Proclus on Pla., Cratyl. p. 76, 28 Pasquali), acc. to Platonic doctrine, w. ref. to the world of things about us, as opposed to the true heavenly originals, or ideas (the αὐθεντικόν). So χειροποίητα ἅγια, ἂ. τῶν ἀληθινῶν a sanctuary made w. hands, a (mere) copy of the true (sanctuary) Hb 9:24. The flesh is ἀντίτυπος τοῦ πνεύματος 2 Cl 14:3a; the spirit, on the other hand, is τὸ αὐθεντικόν vs. 3b. M-M.*

It may be an interpretation of the name Yahweh already current, or an attempt to show reverence for the divine name by preserving it unchanged, or simply one more of the grammatical peculiarities so frequent in Rv (Meyer6-Bousset '06, 159ff; Hadorn, '28, 28; Mlt. 9, note 1; cf. PPar. 51, 33 ἀπὸ ἀπηλιότης).

In ἄ. θεοῦ πειράζομαι the thought is that the temptation is caused by God, though not actually carried out by him Js 1:13. ἡτοιμασμένος ἄ. τοῦ θεοῦ prepared by God's command, not by himself Rv 12:6.

Gr. 217, 26). τὸ ἀπόστολον with (Pla., Ep. 7 p. 346A) or without (Vi. Hom. 19) πλοῖον means a ship ready for departure. In its single occurrence in Jos., Ant. 17, 300; it is not found elsewhere. In Jewish-Gk. lit.) it prob. means 'sending out'; in pap. mostly 'bill of lading', less freq. (Gnomon 64 [II AD]) 'passport'. It can also be 'dispatch, letter': Wilcken, Chrest. 443, 10 (15 AD); PHermopol. 6, 11f (cf. Dig. 49, 6, 1 litteras dimissorias sive apostolos). In contrast, in isolated cases it means ambassador, delegate, messenger (Hdt. 1, 21:5, 38; Synesius, Providence 2, 3 p. 122A ἀπόστολοι of ordinary messengers; Sb 7241, 48; BGU 1741, 6 [64 BC]; 3 Km 14:6A; Is 18:2 Sym.). Cf. KLake, The Word A.: Beginn. I 5, '33, 46-52.

On the other hand, ἄπτεσθαι can mean eat, like our 'touch food' (Od. 4, 60; Plut., Anton. 17 [923]; Charito 6, 2, 8 οὐχ ἤπτετο τροφῆς; Aelian, V.H. 12, 37 ἐπ' ἀπορία τροφῶν ἤφατο τῶν καμήλων=he seized [and ate] the camels; Diog. Finally, θιγγάνω, like ἄπτ. and γεύομαι (q.v. 1) can mean eat (cf. Iambl., Vi. Pyth. 31, 191 κυάμων μὴ θιγγάνειν; 13, 61 γεύεσθαι=Porphyr., Vi. Pyth. 24 θιγγάνειν; POxy. 1185, 10f [c. 200 AD], where three diff. expr. for 'eat' are grouped together: τὸν παῖδα δεῖ ἄρτον ἐσθίειν, ἄλας ἐπιτρώγειν, ὄψαριον μὴ θιγγάνειν; [eat, eat [with], not eat at all]). The combination ἐσθ., τρωγ., θιγγ. might corresp. to Col 2:21 ἄπτ., γεύ., θιγγ., taken to mean eat, enjoy, consume (ἄ. and γεύ. together, both='eat' in Teles p. 34, 5). The verbs perh. connected w. var. foods (s. Also Plut., Mor. 644A ἀρπασμός), which is next to impossible in Phil 2:6 (W-S. §28, 3: the state of being equal w. God cannot be equated w. the act of robbery).

2. As equal to ἄρπαγμα, w. change fr. abstr. to concr. (as θερισμός Rv 14:15, cf. J 4:35; ἱματισμός J 19:24). This mng. cannot be quoted fr. non-Christian lit., but is grammatically justifiable (Kühner-BI. II p. 272; RALipsius, Hand-Comment. ad loc.). Christian exx. are Euseb., In Luc. 6 (AMai, Nova Patr. Bibl. IV 165), where Peter regards death on the cross as ἀρπαγμός 'a prize to be grasped eagerly', and Cyrill. Alex., De Ador. 1, 25 (Migne, Ser. Gr. LXVIII 172C), Lot does not regard the angels' demand as a ἀρπαγμός 'prize'.—But acc. to FEVokes, on Phil 2:5-11 in Studia Evangelica 2, '64, 670-75, forms in -μα may approach -μός forms in mng., but not vice versa, cf. πορισμός 1 Ti 6:5.

a. This can be taken 'sensu malo' to mean prize, booty (so LXX), and only the context and an understanding of Paul's thought in general can decide whether it means holding fast to a prize already obtained (ἃ.= 'res rapta'; so the Gk. fathers) or the appropriation to oneself of a prize which is sought after (ἃ.= 'res rapienda').

b. However, a good sense is also poss., a piece of good fortune, windfall (Heliod. 7, 11, 7; 7, 20, 2 [=ἔρμαιον]; 8, 7, 1; Plut., Mor. 330D; Diod. S. 3, 61, 6; Nägeli 43f)=ἔρμαιον (Isid. Pelus., Ep. 4, 22); again it remains an open question whether the windfall has already been seized and is waiting to be used, or whether it has not yet been appropriated.

3. another less probable mng., is (mystical) rapture, cf. ἀρπάζω 2b and LHammerich, An Ancient Misunderstanding (Phil 2:6 'robbery'), '66, who would translate the phrase 'considered that to be like God was no rapture'; a similar view was expressed by PFlorensky (1915), quoted in Dictionnaire de la Bible, Suppl. 1. self, intensive, setting the individual off fr. everything else, emphasizing and contrasting; used in all pers., genders, and numbers.

a. used w. a subject (noun or pron.)—a. specif. named (X., Cyr. 1, 4, 6; Plut., Caes. 7, 9 αὐ. Κικέρων; 2 Macc 11:12) αὐτὸς Δαυὶδ David himself Mk 12:36f; Lk 20:42; αὐτὸς ὁ Ἰησοῦς short ending of Mk.

β. or otherw. exactly designated αὐ. ὁ θεός (Jos., Bell. 7, 346) Rv 21:3; αὐ. τ. ἐπουράνια Hb 9:23 (cf. 4 Macc 17:17; Sir 46:3); αὐ. ἐγὼ I myself Ro 15:14 (cf. 3 Macc 3:13; POxy. 294 [22 AD]); αὐτὸς ἐγὼ Παῦλος 2 Cor 10:1; αὐτοὶ ὑμεῖς J 3:28 (cf. 4 Macc 6:19); αὐτοὶ οὗτοι (Thu. 6, 33, 6) Ac 24:15; ἐν ὑμῖν αὐτοῖς among yourselves 1 Cor 11:13.

b. to emphasize a subject already known: of Jesus Mt 8:24; Mk 8:29; Lk 5:16f; 9:51; 10:38; 24:36 (cf. the Pythagorean αὐτὸς ἔφα). Of God Hb 13:5 (cf. Wsd 6:7; 7:17; Sir 15:12; 1 Macc 3:22 and oft. LXX).

c. differentiating fr. other subjects or pointing out a contrast w. them αὐ. καὶ οἱ μετ' αὐτοῦ Mk 2:25; J 2:12; 4:53; 18:1; Lk 24:15; 1 Cor 3:15. αὐτοὶ οὐκ εἰσήλθατε καὶ τοὺς εἰσερχομένους ἐκωλύσατε you yourselves did not come in etc. Lk 11:52; cf. vs. 46.—J 9:21; Mt 23:4; Lk 6:11; Ac 18:15; 1 Th 1:9; 1 Cor 2:15. αὐτὸς μόνος he alone (cf. μόνος 1αβ) Mk 6:47; J 6:15. αὐτὸς ἐγὼ I alone 2 Cor 12:13. εἰ μὴ αὐτὸς except himself Rv 19:12. αὐτὸς ὄγδοός ἐστιν he is the eighth 17:11.

d. self=in person (Philo, De Jos. 238: Jos. to his brothers αὐ. εἰμι ἐγὼ) J 4:2; Lk 24:36, 39.

e. of himself, ourselves (Hyperid. 1, 19, 11; 3, 2) without help J 2:25; 4:42; 6:6; Ac 20:34; αὐ. ὠκοδόμησεν he built at his own expense Lk 7:5; αὐ. ὁ πατὴρ φιλεῖ ὑμᾶς the Father loves you of himself J 16:27.

f. thrown on one's own resources αὐ. ἐγὼ τῷ νοῖ δουλεύω νόμῳ θεοῦ thrown on my own resources I can only serve the law of God as a slave with my mind Ro 7:25 (JWeiss, Beitr. zur Paulin. Rhetorik, in BWeiss-Festschr., 1897, 233f; JKürzinger, BZ 7, '63, 270-74).—Cf. Mk 6:31; Ro 9:3.

g. intensifying καὶ αὐτὸς even (Sir Prol. 1. 24 καὶ αὐ. ὁ νόμος even the law; 4 Macc 17:1) καὶ αὐτὴ ἡ κτίσις even the created world Ro 8:21. καὶ αὐτὴ Σάρρα even Sara Hb 11:11 (on the rdg. here cf. Windisch ad loc. and Bl-D. §194, 1; Rob. 686; Mlt-Turner 220; cf. Ps.-Callisth. 1, 10, 3 καὶ αὐτὸν τὸν Φίλιππον=and even Philip; but the text of the Hb passage is not in order; s. καταβολή). οὐδὲ ἡ φύσις αὐτὴ διδάσκει; 1 Cor 11:14.

h. the mng. even, very directs attention to a certain pers. or thing to the exclusion of the others, so that αὐ. can almost take on demonstrative sense (cf. 2, end, below, also Aeschyl., 7 against Thebes 528; Hes., Works 350): αὐ. τὰ ἔργα the very deeds J 5:36; αὐ. ὁ Ἰωάννης (POxy. 745 [I AD] αὐ. τὸν Ἀντᾶν) this very (or same) John Mt 3:4 (s. Mlt. 91); ἐν αὐ. τ. καιρῷ (cf. Tob 3:17BA; 2:9; Dit., Syll. 3 1173, 1 αὐταῖς τ. ἡμέραις) just at that time Lk 13:1.—23:12; 24:13.—2:38; 10:21; 12:12.—10:7. αὐτὸ τοῦτο just this, the very same thing (Oenomaus in Euseb., Pr. Ev. 5, 22, 3; PRyl. 77, 39; POxy. 1119, 11; cf. Phoenix of Colophon p. 6, 82 Gerh.; also p. 115; 2 Cor 7:11; Gal 2:10; Phil 1:6; εἰς αὐ. τοῦτο Ro 9:17; 13:6; 2 Cor 5:5; Eph 6:22; Col 4:8. The phrases τοῦτο αὐ. 2 Cor 2:3 and αὐ. τοῦτο 2 Pt 1:5 are adverbial accusatives for this very reason (Pla., Prot. 310E; X., An. 1, 9, 21; PGrenf. I 1, 14).

2. αὐτὸς refers w. more or less emphasis to a subject, oft. resuming one already mentioned: αὐτοὶ παρακληθήσονται they (not others) shall be comforted Mt 5:4; cf. vs. 5ff. οὐκ αὐτοὶ βλασημοῦσιν; Js 2:7. αὐτὸς σώσει Mt 1:21 (cf. Ps 129:8). αὐτὸς ἀποδώσει 6:4 t.r.—Mk 1:8; 14:15 al. Freq. the emphasis is scarcely felt: Mt 14:2; Lk 4:15; 22:23; J 6:24; Ac 22:19 (cf. Gen 12:12; Tob 6:11 BA; Sir 49:7; Vett. Val. 113, 16.—JWackernagel, Syntax II 2 '28, 86).—Perh. the development of αὐ. in the direction of οὗτος (which it practically replaces in Mod. Gk.) is beginning to have some influence in the NT (Pla., Phaedr. 229E αὐτά=this; X., An. 4, 7, 7 αὐτό; Dio Chrys. 3, 37; 15[32], 10 αὐτοῖ; Aelian, N.A. 6, 10; Mél. de la fac. orient. . . Beyrouth 1, '06, 149 no. 18 εἰς αὐτὸ ἐγεννήθη=for this [purpose] you were born; Schmid IV 69; 616 αὐτὸς=οὗτος; Synes., Ep. 3 p. 159A; 4 p. 165A; Agathias [VI AD], Hist. 1, 3 p. 144, 17 LDindorf [1871]) καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν Σαμαρίτης Lk 17:16 (cf. 3:23; 19:2 and h above). Yet here αὐτὸς could have the mng. alone (examples of this from Hom. on in many writers in WSchulze, Quaestiones epicae 1892, p. 250, 3) he alone was a Samaritan.

3. The oblique cases of αὐ. very oft. (in a fashion customary since Hom.) take the place of the 3rd. pers. personal pron.; in partic. the gen. case replaces the missing possessive pron.

a. w. ref. to a preceding noun διαφέρετε αὐτῶν Mt 6:26; καταβάντος αὐτοῦ 8:1; ἀπεκάλυψας αὐτά 11:25.—26:43f; Mk 1:10; 4:33ff; 12:19; Lk 1:22; 4:41. Forms of αὐ. are sometimes used inexactly in a series, referring to diff. pers.: φέρουσιν αὐτῷ (Jesus) τυφλόν, καὶ παρακαλοῦσιν αὐτὸν (Jesus) ἵνα αὐτοῦ (i.e., τοῦ τυφλοῦ) ἄνηται Mk 8:22.

Βαραχίας, ου, ὁ (בָּרַחְיָה; also Jos., Ant. 9, 250) Barachiah, name of the father of a certain Zechariah (Gk. Zacharias), who was killed in the temple (s. Ζαχαρίας 2) Mt 23:35; Lk 11:51 v.l. Acc. to GH 13 this Zechariah was the son of Jehoiada, not of B., and so identified w. the Zech. who was stoned to death in the temple court, 2 Ch 24:20ff. Zech., the son of Berechiah, is the well-known prophet (Zech 1:1), who seems elsewh. to have been confused w. the murdered Z. (Pesikta R. Kahana 15). If the ref. in the gospels is to a biblical pers., the Zech. of 2 Ch (the last book in the Hebrew canon; Billerb. I 943; IV 422) must be meant. 'son of Barachiah' Mt 23:35 has been considered the gloss of a copyist. The view has been expressed, too, that Jehoiada was not the father, but the grandfather of the ill-fated Z. But since this Z. was not the last prophet or just person to be killed, some scholars hold that the allusion is to Zacharias, son of Baruch, whom the Zealots killed 67/8 AD (Jos., Bell. 4, 334ff). The view that G. means the district orig. inhabited by the Galatians (North Gal. theory) is favored in recent times by vDobschütz, Jülicher, MDibelius, Feine, Ltzm., JMoffatt, Goguel, Sickenberger, Lagrange, Meinertz, Oepke, E Haenchen (Ac '71, 483, 2), ASteinmann (esp. detailed, D. For him the Galatians, of whom he speaks again and again (no. 434 fgm. 1, 11ff Jac.), are the people with a well-defined individuality, who came to Asia Minor from Europe. He would never address the Lycaonians as Γαλάται.—The opp. view, that G. means the Rom. province (South Gal. theory), is adopted by Zahn, Ramsay, EMeyer, EDBurton (Gal '21), GSDuncan (Gal '34), esp. VWeber (Des Pls Reiserouten '20). 1. act. give (a woman) in marriage abs. Mt 24:38; Mk 12:25D. Perh. also γ. abs. and w. acc. 1 Cor 7:38 is to be understood in this sense, of a father who gives his daughter (or a guardian who gives his ward) in marriage (t.r. ἐκγαμίζων). Another view prefers to take γ. here=γαμέω (on this possibility s. Ltzm., Hdb. ad loc.; Bl-D. §101 p. 44 agrees; cf. Mlt.-H. 409f. It is hard to say how far the rule of Apollon., quoted above, applies, since there are so few exx. of γ. On the increasing frequency of formations in-ίζω s. But for 'marriage' he somet. uses the sg. [s. 2 below], somet. the pl. [Ant. 20, 141]; Field, Notes, 16).

c. fig. wedding hall ἐπλήσθη ὁ γάμος (s. νυμφών) ἀνακειμένων the hall was filled w. guests Mt 22:10 t.r.

γάρ (Hom.+; inscr., pap., LXX) conjunction used to express cause, inference, continuation, or to explain. Never comes first in its clause; usu. second, but also third (Hb 11:32), or even fourth (2 Cor 1:19, as e.g. Menand., Epitr. 217; 499; Lucian, Pisc. 10, Philops. 15).

1. cause or reason: for—a. abs. This breaks the connection and the composition is ended).

b. used w. other particles and conjunctions ἰδοὺ γάρ (Jdth 5:23; 9:7; 12:12; 1 Macc 9:45) Lk 1:44, 48; 2:10; 6:23; 17:21; Ac 9:11; 2 Cor 7:11. καὶ γάρ for (=Lat. etenim, Kühner-G. II 338. Cf. c. γάρ is somet. repeated. It occurs twice either to introduce several arguments for the same assertion, as (Sir 37:13f; 38:1f; Wsd 7:16f) J 8:42; 1 Cor 16:7; 2 Cor 11:19f, or to have one clause confirm the other, as (Jdth 5:23; 7:27; 1 Macc 11:10) Mt 10:19f; Lk 8:29; J 5:21f, 46; Ac 2:15; Ro 6:14; 8:2f; Hv 5:3; or to have various assertions of one and the same sentence confirmed one after the other Mt 3:2f; J 3:19f (cf. Wsd 1:5f; EpJer 6; 7). γάρ also occurs three times (Wsd 9:13-15; 14:27-9) Mt 16:25-7; Lk 9:24-6; Ro 4:13-15; 2 Cor 3:9-11; four times Mk 8:35-8; Ro 1:16-18; even five times 1 Cor 9:15-17.

d. the general is confirmed by the specific Mk 7:10; Lk 12:52; Ro 7:2; 1 Cor 12:8;—the specific by the general Mt 7:8; 13:12; 22:14; Mk 4:22, 25.

e. Oft. the thought to be supported is not expressed, but must be supplied fr. the context, e.g. (he has truly been born,) for we have seen his star Mt 2:2. (Let no one refuse,) ὅς γάρ ἐάν θέλῃ Mk 8:35; Lk 9:24. (Let no disciple fail to testify,) ὅς γάρ ἐάν ἐπαισχυνοῦν με Mk 8:38. This is common; cf. Used w. other particles καὶ γάρ Mt 15:27; 2 Cor 5:2; 13:4; Phil 2:27; 1 Th 3:4; 4:10. καὶ γάρ οὐ 2 Cor 3:10. μὲν γάρ Ro 2:25; 1 Cor 5:3; 11:7; 2 Cor 9:1; Hb 7:18. οὐ γάρ Mt 9:13; Mk 9:6; Lk 6:43f; Ac 4:20; Ro 8:15; 2 Cor 1:13.

f. oft. in questions, where the English idiom leaves the word untransl., adds then, pray, or prefixes what! or why! to the question (Hyperid., fgm. 219; Ael. Aristid. 47, 27 K.=23 p. 452 D.; Jos., Bell. 1, 589, Ant. 9, 92) ποῖον γάρ κλέος; what credit is there? 1 Pt 2:20. μὴ γάρ. . . ἔρχεται; *what! Is the Messiah to hail fr. Mk 15:14; Lk 23:22. τί γάρ; transitional, what, then, is the situation? Ro 3:3; what does it matter? Phil 1:18.

3. inferential: certainly, by all means, so, then. In self-evident conclusions, esp. in exclamations, strong affirmations, etc. (Diogenes the Cynic in Diog. L. 6, 47 παῦσαι γάρ=stop, then) μὴ γάρ οἰεσθὼ ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἐκεῖνος let that man by no means believe Js 1:7; μὴ γάρ τις ὑμῶν πασχέτω by no means let any of you suffer 1 Pt 4:15; ἀναλογίσασθε γάρ τὸν. . . ὑπομεμνηκότα by all means consider him who endured Hb 12:3; οὐ γάρ no, indeed! Ac 16:37 (Aristoph., Nub. 232, Ran. 58; Pla., Rep. 492C; Lucian, Jupp. Conf. 16). The meaning nation is possible, e.g., in Mt 23:36; but s. also 2.

2. basically, the sum total of those born at the same time, expanded to include all those living at a given time generation, contemporaries (Hom., al.; BGU 1211, 12 [II BC] ἔως γενεῶν τριῶν); Jesus looks upon the whole contemp. generation of Jews as a uniform mass confronting him ἡ γ. αὕτη (cf. A more favorable kind of γ . is mentioned in Ps 23:6; 111:2; 1 QS 3, 14.—The desert generation Hb 3:10 (Ps 94:10). ἰδίᾳ γ . ὑπηρετήσας after he had served his own generation Ac 13:36; γ . ἡμῶν 1 Cl 5:1; αἱ πρὸ ἡμῶν γ . 19:1; πρώτη γ . the first generation (of Christians) Hs 9, 15, 4 (Paus. 7, 4, 9 τετάρτη γενεᾷ=in the fourth generation).

3. age, the time of a generation (since Hdt. 2, 142; Dionys. Hal. 3, 15; Gen 50:23; Ex 13:18; 20:5; EpJer 2; Philo, Mos. 1, 7; Jos., Ant. 5, 336; Sib. Or. 3, 108). Here the original sense gradually disappears, and the mng. ‘a period of time’ remains.

Always without the article (in 1 Cor 14:22 αἱ is anaphoric; vs. 9 belongs under mng. 1a). There is no doubt about the thing referred to, namely the broken speech of persons in religious ecstasy. The phenomenon, as found in Hellenistic religion, is described esp. by ERohde (Psyche3 '03, Engl. transl. '25, 289-93) and Reitzenstein; cf. Celsus 7, 8; 9. The origin of the term is less clear. Two explanations are prominent today. The one (Bleek, Heinrici) holds that γλῶσσα here means antiquated, foreign, unintelligible, mysterious utterances (Diod. S. 4, 66, 7 κατὰ γλῶτταν=according to an old expression). The other (Rtztst., Bousset) sees in glossolalia a speaking in marvelous, heavenly languages. δευτερόπρωτος, ον a word of doubtful mng., only in the phrase ἐν σαββάτῳ δ. Lk 6:1 (acc. to mss. διαθήκη, ης, ἡ (Democr., Aristoph.+, inscr., pap., LXX, En., Philo, Joseph.).

1. last will and testament (so exclusively in Hellenistic times, Eger 99 note; exx. e.g. in Riggenbach 292ff; Behm 10, 1; 2; Philo, Joseph., Test. 12 Patr.; loanw. in rabb.) Hb 9:16f; δ. κεκυρωμένη a will that has been ratified Gal 3:15; cf. 17, where δ. shades into mng. 2 (s. κυρόω 1, προκυρόω); s. also EBammel, below, and JSwetnam, CBQ 27, '65, 373-90.

2. As a transl. of תְּרִי in LXX δ. loses the sense of 'will, testament' insofar as a δ. decreed by God cannot require the death of the testator to make it operative. Nevertheless, another essential characteristic of a testament is retained, namely that it is the declaration of one person's will, not the result of an agreement betw. two parties, like a compact or a contract. This is without doubt one of the main reasons why the LXX rendered תְּרִי by δ. In the 'covenants' of God, it was God alone who set the conditions; hence covenant (s. Murray, New [Oxford] Engl. Dict. s.v. 'covenant' sb. 7) can be used to trans. δ. only when this is kept in mind. So δ. acquires a mng. in LXX which cannot be paralleled w. certainty in extra-Biblical sources, namely 'decree', 'declaration of purpose', 'set of regulations', etc. Our lit., which is very strongly influenced by LXX in this area, seems as a rule to have understood the word in these senses. God has issued a declaration of his will Ro 11:27 (Is 59:21); 1 Cl 15:4 (Ps 77:37); 35:7 (Ps 49:16), which he bears in mind (cf. Ps 104:8f al.) Lk 1:72; it goes back to the days of the fathers Ac 3:25. He also issued an ordinance (of circumcision) 7:8 (cf. Gen 17:10ff). Since he has made known his holy will on more than one occasion, one may speak of διαθήκαι decrees, assurances (cf. διαθήκαι πατέρων Wsd 18:22; 2 Macc 8:15.—But the pl. is also used for a single testament: Diog. L. 4, 44; 5, 16. In quoting or referring to Theophr. sometimes the sing. [Diog. L. 5, 52; 56] is used, sometimes the pl. [5, 51; 57]) Ro 9:4; Eph 2:12. Much emphasis is laid on the δ. κατηνῆ, mentioned as early as Jer 31:31 [LXX 38:31], which God has planned for the future (Hb 8:8-10; 10:16). God's decree or covenant directed toward the Christians is a κατηνῆ δ. Lk 22:20; 1 Cor 11:25; 2 Cor 3:6; Hb 8:8; 9:15a; PK 2 p. 15, 5, or δ. νέα Hb 12:24; PK 2 p. 15, 6 which, as a δ. αἰώνιος (cf. Jer 39:40; En. 98, 2) Hb 13:20, far excels 7:22; 8:6 the παλαιὰ δ. 2 Cor 3:14, or πρώτη δ. Hb 9:15b, with which it is contrasted. Both are mentioned Gal 4:24; B 4:6ff (Ex 34:28; 31:18). Blood was shed when the old covenant was proclaimed at Sinai Hb 9:20 (Ex 24:8); the same is true of the new covenant Hb 10:29. τὸ αἷμά μου τ. διαθήκης Mt 26:28; Mk 14:24 (Elohse, Märtyrer u. Gottesknecht², '63, 122-29) is prob. to be understood in connection w. this blood (cf. WWrede, ZNW 1, '00, 69-74; THRobinson, My Blood of the Covenant: KMarti-Festschr. '25, 232-7; for a critique of this view s. GWalther, Jesus, D. Passalam des Neuen Bundes, '50, 22-27 and JoachJeremias ThLZ, '51, 547. For Syriac background JAEmerton, JTS 13, '62, 111-17).—The v.l. Lk 22:29 may be derived from Jer 39:40 or Is 55:3 LXX.—δ. may also be transl. decree in the Epistle of Barnabas (4:6ff; 6:19; 9:6; 13:1, 6; 14:1ff δ. δοῦναι τινί); the freq. occurrence of the idea of inheritance, however (6:19; 13:1, 6; 14:4f), makes it likely that the 'decree' is to be thought of as part of a will.

3. The mng. compact, contract seems to be established for class. times (FNorton, A Lexicographical and Historical Study of Διαθήκη, Chicago '08, 31ff; EBruck, D. Schenkung auf d. Todesfall im griech. u. röm. Recht I '09, 115ff; JWackernagel, D. Kultur d. Gegenw. I 82 '07, 309). It remains doubtful whether this mng. has influenced our lit. here and there. It is also uncertain just how such fixed expr. as ἡ κιβωτὸς τ. διαθήκης (Ex 31:7; 39:14 al.) Hb 9:4; Rv 11:19 or αἱ πλάκες τ. διαθ. (Ex 34:28; Dt 9:9, 11) Hb 9:4 were understood by Christian authors. At least for the first expr. it is prob well to retain the stereotyped transl. ark of the covenant.—ERiggenbach, D. εἰ (Hom.+; inscr., pap., LXX, Ep. Arist., Philo, Joseph.).

I. conditional particle if (Bl-D. §371f, neg. §428, 1; 2; Rob., indexes).

1. w. the indic.—a. in all tenses, to express a condition thought of as real or to denote assumptions relating to what has already happened εἰ υἱὸς εἶ τοῦ θεοῦ if you really are the Son of God Mt 4:3; 5:29f; 6:23; 8:31; Ac 5:39. εἰ σὺ Ἰουδαῖος ἐπονομάζῃ if you call yourself a Jew Ro 2:17. εἰ κατακαυχᾶσαι, οὐ σὺ βαστάξεις if you do boast, (remember) you do not support 11:18 and very oft. In Paul the verb is freq. missing, and is to be supplied fr. the context: εἰ Χριστὸς ἐν ὑμῖν (sc. ἐστίν), τὸ μὲν σῶμα νεκρὸν (sc. ἐστίν) 8:10. εἰ τέκνα (sc. ἐστέ) if you are children, then. . . vs. 17, εἰ χάριτι (γέγονεν), οὐκέτι ἐξ ἔργων 11:6 al. The negative in clauses where the reality of the condition is taken for granted is οὐ (class. μή): εἰ οὐ δύναται τοῦτο παρελθεῖν Mt 26:42. εἰ δὲ ὑμεῖς οὐκ ἀφίετε Mk 11:26 v.1. εἰ πιστοὶ οὐκ ἐγένεσθε Lk 16:11f; εἰ οὐκ ἀκούουσιν vs. 31. εἰ οὐ φοβοῦμαι Lk 18:4; cf. J 5:47; 10:37; Ro 8:9; 11:21; 1 Cor 7:9; 9:2; 11:6; 15:13ff, 29, 32; 16:22 al. εἰ is rarely found w. the future εἰ πάντες σκανδαλισθήσονται Mt 26:33; Mk 14:29. εἰ ἀρνησόμεθα 2 Ti 2:12. εἰ ὑπομενεῖτε 1 Pt 2:20. εἰ καὶ οὐ δώσει (class. ἔαν καὶ μή δῶ) Bl-D. §372, 3; Rob. 1012) Lk 11:8. W. aor., when the events are regarded as having taken place Mt 24:22; Mk 3:26; 13:20.

b. w. the pres., impf., aor., or plpf. indic. to express an unreal (contrary to fact) condition (Bl-D. §360, 372; Rob. 1012ff). ἂν is usu. found in the apodosis (regularly in class.) εἰ ἐν Τύρῳ καὶ Σίδωνι ἐγένοντο αἱ δυνάμεις, πάλαι ἂν μετενόησαν if the wonders had been done in T. and S., they would have repented long ago Mt 11:21. εἰ ἡμεθα ἐν ταῖς ἡμέραις τῶν πατέρων ἡμῶν if we had lived in the days of our fathers 23:30. εἰ ἦδει ὁ οἰκοδεσπότης if the master of the house had known 24:43. εἰ ἦν προφήτης, ἐγίνωσκεν ἂν if he were a prophet, he would know Lk 7:39 and oft. The pres. indic. εἰ ἔχετε (v.1. εἶχετε) πίστιν. . . ἐλέγετε ἂν if you had faith. . . you would say Lk 17:6. Somet. ἂν is lacking in the apodosis (Polyaenus 2, 3, 5 εἰ ἐπεποιήκειμεν. . . νῦν ἐχρῆν=if we had done. . . it would have been necessary; PReinach 7 [II BC]; POxy. 526; 530; PMelcher, De sermone Epict., Diss. Halle '05, 75; Mlt. 200f) εἰ μὴ ἦν οὗτος παρὰ θεοῦ, οὐκ ἠδύνατο if this man were not from God, he would not have been able to. . . J 9:33. εἰ μὴ ἦλθον, ἀμαρτίαν οὐκ εἶχσαν if I had not come, they would not have sin 15:22; cf. vs. 24. W. the apodosis placed first Mk 9:42 (v.l. περιέκατο), Lk 17:2; J 19:11.

2. εἰ w. subj., as καὶ εἴ τις θελήσῃ Rv 11:5, is unusual, perh. a textual error; BI-D. §372, 3 app. conjectures καὶ for καὶ εἰ. But εἰ w. subj. is found in the older poets and Hdt. (Kühner-G. II 474), in Aristoph., Equ. 698 et al., in var. dialects (EHermann, Griech. Forschungen I '12, 277f) and in later times (e.g. Epict., Vett. Val., Lucian [ed. BI-D. §385, 2). εἰ τύχοι is used as a formula (oft. in secular wr., incl. Philo; cf. KReik, D. Opt. bei Polyb. u. Philo '07, 154) it may be, for example, perhaps 1 Cor 15:37; used to tone down an assertion which may be too bold 14:10 (Lucian, Icarom. 6 καὶ πολλάκις, εἰ τύχοι, μηδὲ ὅποσοι στάδιοι Μεγαρόθεν Ἀθήναζε εἰσιν, ἀκριβῶς ἐπιστάμεοι).

S. 23, 15, 5, παράδοξον. . . εἰ=incredible. . . that; ibid. θαυμαστὸν εἰ; Gen 45:28 μέγα μοί ἐστιν εἰ).—That is also poss. after verbs of knowing or not knowing, e.g., J 9:25; Ac 19:2; 1 Cor 1:16; 7:16; so CBurchard, ZNW 52, '61, 73-82.

III. In causal clauses, when an actual case is taken as a supposition, where we also can use if instead of since: εἰ τὸν χόρτον. . . ὁ θεὸς οὕτως ἀμφιέννυσιν if God so clothes the grass Mt 6:30; Lk 12:28; cf. Ps 7:4f; Gen 14:23) ἀμὴν λέγω ὑμῖν εἰ δοθήσεται truly, I tell you, it will not be given Mk 8:12 (NDColeman, JTS 28, '27, 159-67 interprets this as strongly positive; against him FCBurkitt, ibid. 274-76). εἰ εἰσελεύσονται they shall certainly not enter Hb 3:11; 4:3, 5 (all 3 Ps 94:11); BI-D. §372, 4; 454, 5; Mlt.-H. 468f; Rob. 94; 1024.

e. In indirect discourse the speaker refers to himself as ἐκ. (Isaeus 8, 22a; Polyb. 3, 44, 10; 12, 16, 5). Is it possible to see in this an indication that the narrator of the 4th Gospel, who could no more use the I-form than could the speaker in indirect discourse, is designating himself by ἐκ. 19:35, and by what he says is seeking to corroborate the statement of another? ἐμβατεύω (Aeschyl.+; inscr.; pap.; LXX) is found in our lit. only Col 2:18 ἃ ἐώρακεν ἐμβατεύων, a passage whose interpr. is much disputed. It has the foll. mngs.:

1. set foot upon, enter, visit (since Aeschyl, Pers. 449; Jos., Ant. 2, 265; 1 Macc 12:25; 13:20 al.).
2. come into possession of (Eur., Demosth., pap.), even by force (Jos 19:49, 51).
3. enter into a subj., to investigate it closely, go into detail (2 Macc 2:30; Philo, Plant. 80 Wendl. v.l.), hence in Col 2:18 perh. entering at length upon the tale of what he has seen in a vision (ADNock, JBL 52, '33, 132).
4. Three inscr. of Asia Minor [II AD], which refer to the Apollo of Klaros (the wording in question is found in MDibelius, D. Isisweihe bei Apuleius=SAHeidelberg '17, 4 p. 33f; one of these inscr. also in Dit., Or. 530; cf. I. 15), show that ἐ. was a t.t. of the mystery religions. Then perh. who enters (the sanctuary) which he saw (in ecstasy) (cf. also Clemen 340f) or taking his stand on what he has seen in the mysteries (M-M). AFridrichsen, ZNW 21, '22, 135-7 connects the words w. what follows: puffed up without reason by what he saw when he was initiated.—Field, Notes 197f; SEitrem, Studia Theologica 2, '48, 90-4; SLyonnet, Col 2:18 et les mystères de Apollon Clarien, Biblica 43, '62, 417-35: 'investigate, examine thoroughly.'—HPreisker, TW II 531-3. Ac 1:11; Sir 51:7), and the observation that ἐμβλ. 22:11 would have to mean be able to see; the latter mng. cannot be established beyond all doubt by ἐνέβλεπεν τηλαυγῶς ἅπαντα Mk 8:25, since for this pass. he could see everything plainly is no more likely than he had a clear view of everything (on the acc. cf. Herodas 6, 44; Anth. Pal. 11, 3; Judg 16:27; Sib. Or. 7, 124).

d. It is a reverential way of expressing oneself, when one is speaking of an eminent per., and esp. of God, not to connect him directly w. what happens, but to say that it took place 'before him' (cf. Dalman, Worte 171-4): ἐπακοῦσαι ἔ. αὐτοῦ ἔθνη that the nations should obey (before) him B 12:11 (Is 45:1). ποιεῖν τὸ πονηρὸν ἔ. τοῦ κυρίου Hm 4, 2, 2 (cf. Judg 2:11; 3:12; 4:1). εὐδοκία ἔ. σου pleasing to thee Mt 11:26; Lk 10:21; θέλημα ἔ. τ. πατρὸς ὑμῶν Mt 18:14.

e. before, ahead of, w. motion implied ἔ. τινος (UPZ 78, 15 [159 BC] ἔμπροσθεν αὐτῶν ἐπορευόμεν) J 10:4; B 11:4 (Is 45:2); προπορεύεσθαι ἔ. τινος 3:4 (Is 58:8); cf. 4:12; ἀποστέλλεσθαι ἔ. τινος (Gen 24:7; 32:4) J 3:28; σαλπίζειν ἔ. τινος blow a trumpet before someone Mt 6:2; τὴν ὁδὸν κατασκευάζειν ἔ. τινος Mt 11:10; Lk 7:27.

f. of rank (Pla., Leg. 1 p. 631D; 5 p. 743E; 7 p. 805D; Demosth. 56, 50 εἶναι ἔ. τινος; Gen 48:20) ἔ. τινος γίνεσθαι rank before (i.e. higher than) someone J 1:15, 30 (Plut., Pericl. 11, 1 οἱ ἀριστοκρατικοὶ. . . Περικλέα. . . πρόσθεν ὀρῶντες γεγονότα τῶν πολιτῶν). If ἔ. τινος γ. is to be understood temporally here (as 3 Km 3:12; 16:25, 33; 4 Km 18:5; Eccl 1:16; 2:7, 9; Jos., Ant. 1, 109)='be earlier than someone', the foll. ὅτι πρῶτός μου ἦν, which gives the reason for it, would simply result in tautology (but cf. OCullmann, Coniect. Neot. 11, '47, 31 who holds that the ὅτι- clause refers to the absolute time of the Prologue while the preceding words merely give the order in which the ministries of John and Jesus began). 2. to denote the point of time when *some*th. occurs ἐν ἡμέρᾳ κρίσεως Mt 11:22. ἐν τῇ ἐσχάτῃ ἡμέρᾳ J 6:44; 11:24; cf. 7:37. ἐν ἐκείνῃ τῇ ὥρᾳ Mt 8:13; 10:19; cf. 7:22. ἐν σαββάτῳ 12:2; J 7:23. ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ J 11:9 (opp. ἐν τῇ νυκτί vs. 10). ἐν τῷ δευτέρῳ on the second visit Ac 7:13. ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ in the new age Mt 19:28. ἐν τῇ παρουσίᾳ 1 Cor 15:23; 1 Th 2:19; 3:13; Phil 2:12 (here, in contrast to the other pass., there is no reference to the second coming of Christ); 1J 2:28. ἐν τῇ ἀναστάσει in the resurrection Mt 22:28; Mk 12:23; Lk 14:14; 20:33; J 11:24. ἐν τῇ ἐσχάτῃ σάλπιγγι at the last trumpet-call 1 Cor 15:52. ἐν τῇ ἀποκαλύψει when the Lord appears (in the last days) 2 Th 1:7; 1 Pt 1:7, 13; 4:13.

W. the aor. inf. the meaning is likewise when. Owing to the fundamental significance of the aor. the action in such a construction is not thought of as durative, but merely as punctiliar. Cf. Rob. 1073, disagreeing w. BI-D. §404. ἐν τῷ γενέσθαι τὴν φωνήν Lk 9:36. ἐν τῷ ἐπανελεῖν αὐτόν 19:15. ἐν τῷ εἰσελεῖν αὐτούς 9:34.

Homer, (many examples of instrumental ἐν in Radermacher’s edition of Ps.-Demetr., Eloc. p. 100) but whose wide currency in our lit. is partly caused by the infl. of the LXX, and its similarity to the Hebr. constr. w. (BI-D. §219 w. app.; Mlt. 104; Mlt.-H. 463f).

1. buy, buy up τὴν some (Polyb. 3, 42, 2; Plut., Crass. 2, 5) or redeem (lit. ‘buy back’), deliver τινά someone (Diod. S. 15, 7, 1; 36, 2, 2 [but cf. SLyonnet, Biblica 42, ’61, 85-89, Sin, Redemption and Sacrifice, ’70, 104-19]) τοὺς ὑπὸ νόμον those who are subject to the law Gal 4:5. The thing from which deliverance is obtained is added with ἐκ: ἡμᾶς ἐκ τῆς κατάρας τοῦ νόμου 3:13. Dssm., LO 270-8 [LAE 322-34].

2. The mid. ἐξαγοράζεσθαι τ. καιρόν Col 4:5; Eph 5:16 cannot be interpr. w. certainty. One possible mng. is make the most of the time (which is severely limited because of the proximity of the Parousia as well as for other reasons; but s. also καιρός 2; cf. Plut., Sert. 6, 6 καιρόν ὠνεῖσθαι); cf. Murray, New [Oxford] Engl. Dict. s.v. redeem 8, ‘save (time) fr. being lost’.—RMPope, ET 22, ’11, 552-4.—But the earliest occurrence of ἐξαγ. suggests a different sense as the verb is used with the acc. Heraclides [III BC], Reisebilder 1951 §22 p. 82 FPFister: τὸν ἀδικηθέντα ἐξαγοράζειν=buy off the claims of the injured man, satisfy the one who has been wronged. So also the mid. διὰ μιᾶς ὥρας τὴν αἰώνιον κόλασιν ἐξαγοράζομενοι with a single hour (of torment) buying off (avoiding) eternal punishment MPol 2:3. Is this possibly the way to understand ἐξαγ. in Col 4:5; Eph 5:16? The καιρός is συνεσταλμένος and its ‘evil’ days present wrathful demands (1 Cor 7:29-32) which must be satisfied.—Some mss. of MPol 2:3 read ζῶν instead of κόλασιν; in this case ἐ. would mean purchase (cf. KLake, transl. ad loc., note 2, also transl. of Kleist and Gdspe.). M-M.*
